

A Teacher's Diary

That is hidden in his sock drawer!

DAY 28351

Today when I woke up I tripped over my cat and fell face first on the floor. I hate that big but unnoticable fluffball! When I got to school I realized that I had missed an important meeting with the principle yesterday. I decided that I would try to avoid her today. I finally got to the classroom and sat down at my desk. The children were sitting at their desks but they were not quiet. I stood up and knocked over a chair but still no one noticed. I rang my cowbell that I barely ever do because it makes a loud and ear piercing noise. Everybody stared at me like I was an alien that just stepped out of a spaceship. I started to talk. "Today we have a test class. Get out your pencils and erasers." The class did as they were told and when I handed out the tests the didn't make a peep. I sat back down and started the timer. Soon I noticed that Julie was whispering to Maria but I decided not to do anything. At break time I was going to go and eat something when the principle came up and told me off. I went back to the class and got my phone to call a replacement. I was going home. I sat down on my sofa at home and turned on the TV.

Right now I forgot to put on a tie so...

HELP ME!
