

Show biz

After weeks of practicing I had finally made it to center stage. As everyone crowded into the seats in front of me I knew it was time. Even though the lights were blinding me to the maximum, I still said what I could. Even though my mind had gone completely blank, I improvised. "The thing with show biz is that if you say something wrong the audience won't know, they don't know the script. Don't be afraid to improvise." Were the exact words my teacher in Showtime told me and I will remember that on my first public show!
